MR. BLAINE IN MICHIGAN.

DETROIT FOLKS OF ALL POLITICAL SHADES FLUCK TO HEAR HIM.

Pension Vetocs and Talks on the Surplus.

Defroit turned out by the thousands to-day to listen to Mr. Blaine's opening speech in Michigan. Arrangements had been made to hold the meeting at Recreation Park, but an ley wind from the west caused the managers to hold the meeting at the Detroit Rink. With a capacity of 6,000, the rink was crowded an hour before the speaking and a great multitude was turned away for want of room. From the mement the Maine statesman appeared until some time after he mounted the platform the great audience kept up a continuous cheer. Gen. Alger acted as Chairman and introduced Mr. Blaine, who said:

Mr. Chairman and introduced Mr. Blai Pension Vetoes and Talks on the Surplus. DETROIT, Oct. 3.—The Republicans of Dein the colonies, accustomed as they were to British law, that to give the President the right to veto any act of Congress, and to require the votes of two-thirds of the Senate and twothirds of the House to override that veto, was to confer upon the President a most extraordinary power. It gave him a rower in the Sendinary power. It gave him a rower in the Senate and the House equivalent to one-sixth of the whole legislative nower of the Government.

The difference between a majority of one and a vote of two-thirds amounted to one-sixth of the whole power of Congress. So that one President of to-day wields the legislative power of thirden Senators and fitty-four Represontatives, when in his executive capacity he vators a bill.
A power so extraordinary was naturally used resentatives, when in his executive capacity he vators a bill.

A power so extraordinary was naturally used with great caution by our earlier Presidents. Gen. Washington, in eight years, used it twice. The first Adams never used it at all. Jofferson, considered very erroneously, but still considered by the modern Democracy as their great prototype, in eight years never used it at all. Madison, in eight years, used it three times. Monroe used it once, and John Quiney Adams never. So that in the first forty years of the National Government—measuring from Washington to Jackson, from 1789 to 1829—the veto power had been used only six times.

Then came in the great leader of the present Democratic party as it has been organized for the last sixty years—Gen. Andrew Jackson.

[Upon the mention of Jackson's name, a number of vociferous Democratin a corner of the hall set up a yell of applause, to which Mr. Blaine repided:

ber of vociferous Democrates in a corner of the hall set up a yell of applause, to which Mr. Blaine replied:

Gen. Jackson was a man worthy of your cheers, because, however his contemporaries or those who have succeeded him differed from him on certain great questions, they remember that the first efforts of the disunionists were strangled in the cradle by that grand oid hero. (This quick and happy retort upon the disturbers of the meeting was received by the great audience with an outburst of hearty cheers. Mr. Blaine continued:)

In the next forty years the veto was used sixty times, and of these sixty over fifty of them were by Democratic Presidents. (Applause.) So that the party which professes to be so intensely Democratic has been uniformly the one which resorted to the one-man power to thwart the popular will. Up to March 4, 1885, when the present President of the United States was inaugurated, the veto power of the Government had been used in all about seventy-five times; that was from 1789 to 1885—she hundred years lacking four.

And now Mr. Cleveland. (At this point the discordant element in the gallery, as if by conserted arrangement. started applause for the received arrangement. started applause for the said:)

Mr. Cleveland in three and one half years has heed the year over 300 times, or had whea I setically drowned by a deluge of Bisses from the body of the audience. Resuming, Mr. Bisine said;

Mr. Cleveland in three and one half years has need the veto over 300 times, or had when I jett New York, the day before yesterday, and how many times he has used it since I do not know. (Cheers and laughter.) And of those vetoes by President Cleveland 206 have been used to prevent a pitiful pension of $4 a month or $8 a month—a few. I believe, of $12 a month to worn down and starving soldiers of the United States. (Cheers and cries of "Hear, hear," And he is the first President of the United States. (Cheers and cries of "Hear, hear," And he is the first President of the United States that ever vetoed a hill for the relief of a soldier that had offered his body to the cannon shot and shell of the enemy of his country. I wish I had those vetoes here and had time to dwell upon them. They have all been issued in pamphlet form and they furnish a succinct exposition of the difference between the Republican snat the Demogratic parties of to-day as to the manner of treating the soldiers of the republic. I commend it as one of the best political documents in print. Mark you, $11. Chairman, there was not. In any one of these vetoes, I believe a charge that the men to whom the pensions were to be given had not been a soldier of the United States. There was not a single question that the men who were to be relieved by the pension sought were in sore and pressing need of bread. There was not any single case the slightest question involved of the constitutional power of Congress to grant the pension.

centry bereast or the constitutional power of Congress to grant the pension.

Pensions for an application for a pension under existing laws. We all know that from the general pension laws provide for the general cases of cases. We do our best by general law to fread all cases, but in generalizing there will always for found exceptions, and the providence of the personal merit of the men who applied for relief. (Applaues.) Every case had been before the committee of a semblican Senate and a Democratic House, and every case had been passed through a Republican Senate and a Pension than that should produce, and yet they mere with the absolute veto of the President. Some of them even out of their grinness and out of their crueity had. I think a spice of humor in them. I recall one—I wish had fallen veign to their crueity had. I think a spice of humor in them. I recall one—I wish had fallen veign to their crueity had. I think a spice of humor in them. I recall one—I wish had fallen veign to neuralizate the most cautiye, and to allay the pain he was in the habit of taking optaies. He was found dead in his bed, and the question was, whether he incurred his disability in the line of duty, whether he died of the pain or of an overdoes of the projection, and a case of that kind might be so often reposited.

Mr. Cleveland, in his veto message, said it would be a very bad precedent to grant the widow of a bricklasser who swam of the projection of t houses and leaving all sorts of widows and orphans behind them." [Laughter and applause.]

I do not mtend Mr. Chairman, to dwell on the subject of pensions, and have introduced it now iin order that it might be placed vis. As with another subject, namely, the great surplus in the Treasury of the United States, a part of which. I think, might have gone to that poor solder without endangering the stability of the Government. [Applause and laughter,] But that surplus which the President has been accumulating with great zeal and industry for more than a year and a half, requaing to apply it to the reduction of the public debt; that surplus which he finds such great danger to the republic has at least found its useful fate. The President and his Secretary of the Treasury have ameliorated the danger by giving more than 400,000,000 of it as a loan without interest to some national banks scattered all over the country; and this day and hour your money and mine, and this day and hour your money and mine, and the money of every citizen of the United States to the amount of more than $60,000,000 is loaned without a cent of interest to certain national banks in this country, and I contend (although I have not time at present to go into that subject without a shadow of substantial right under the law. That $60,000,000 of money is secured to the Government by the men who borrow it depositing bonds of the thited States, and they are allowed to collect the interest from the coupons on those bonds and to retain at the same time the interest they can warn on the sixty millions. Allowing that interest to be at the rate of live per cent. and I do not think you or I could get much of it for less from those bankers flaughter, there is $3,000,000 gratuity given away by the President and the Secrotary of the Treasury in a single year.

Well, my friends, any one of us could get rich the foregraphs.

dent and the Secretary of the Treasury in a single year.
Well, my friends, any one of us could get rich if the Government would favor us as it does these national banks. (Laughter, I read this morning that the Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Mr. Calvin Brice, a very bright, quick, and able man has a million of the surplus in his bank. (Laughter and appeause.) Well that is worth $50,000 a year. If anything would tempt a man to be Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, I should think $50,000 would go a little way toward it. (Laughter)

toward it. (Laughter.)
Still further. Mr. Chairman. When there was danger last year, and the year before, of a stringency in the mousey market, and too little circulation, there was a movement made in Geogress to allow the national banks to six culate on the bonds they have deposited up to par instead of being confined to 90 per cent, as they are now by law. On every $10.000 of Government bonds, as you all know, the bank only circulate. $9.000 of bills. The Democrats defeated the proposition, and yet in this gratuitous distribution of the sixty odd millions of dollars. President Cleveland and Socretary Fairchild have allowed 110 to the national banks instead of 90. That is, if any one of the pet banks brings $10.000 of Government bonds to the Treasury, the bank would get $11,000 in money.

ury Department will receive in a single year from the interest of the money that is loaned. [Cheers.]

I do not wish to characterize this net any further. Its description is its characterization. I wish to do no more than to state the facts, and I leave their further consideration and freatment to the voters of the country. The President of the United States is now to answer before the people, and the people of Michigan and the people of Naime [cheers] who are going to pull together in this great national contest [cheers] must decide whether the surplus money of the United States had not better so for the relief of the poor and the suffering among the Union soldiers than to the rich Democratic bankers in Wall street who receive unlawful gain from your money and mine.

Upon the close of the speech three cheers were given for Mr. Blaine. Mr. Blaine was followed by Gen. Adam King of Maryland and others.

While in Detroit Mr. Blaine is the guest of Gen. Alger. The party, consisting of Mr. Blaine, his son, Walker, Gens, Alger and King, and a few others, will go by special train tomorrow morning to Adrian, where Mr. Blaine will address a mass meeting. From Adrian the party will return to Detroit and on Friday will go to East Saginaw, and from there perhaps to Ishpeming.

THE MAYOR ON INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS. can Institute Pair.

Mayor Hewitt was present last night at the opening of the American Institute Fair. President Rutter introduced him as one deeply interested in every undertaking the tendency of which is to the moral, physical, and intellectual benefit of the city of New York, It was the fifty-seventh anniversary of the Institute, and President Rutter called attention to the fact that this year two new features are intro-and President Rutter called attention to the fact that this year two new features are introduced—the reduction of the admission fee to 25 cents and the seiling and delivery of goods during the progress of the fair.

Mayor Hewitt spoke half an hour in a philosophical vein of the vast progress that has been made during the past lifty-seven years in all the industries that find representation in the great clearing house of the society's fairs. He said that by the progress of science and industry the veriest tramp and pauper of to-day was better clothed, better housed, and better fed than were our ancestors a hundred years ago. Individual liberty was the basis of our progress, and whoever sought to fetter the right of the individual to control his own labor and his own property was an enemy to civilization. He defended the right of association as one of the principles that lay at the foundation of our industrial structure, admitting that monepolies were at war with the rights of the individual and proper subjects of control by legislation. He spoke of the great saving which later inventions had made possible, declaring that in ow costs only about one-fifth of what it did twenty years ago to moves ton of freight one mile by railroad, and that the saving in this respect alone was, last year, $600,000,000. He declared that the actual existing wealth of the world would be covered by the saving which had been made possible by the inventions of Bessemer, and he defended the right of Bessemer to the possession of the $10,000,000 which he had earned by his invention.

In conclusion the Mayor spoke of the great necessity for the education of the young to meet the new conditions, and he called special attention to the new method of industrial education in the schools which he has favored.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 3. The Stock Exchange markets were influenced largely to-day by fears of a disastrous outcome of the Chicago wheat deal. Of course the greatest stress was laid upon this possibility by the bears, who also argued that if the Bank of England rate of discount was advanced to-morrow London would sell stocks freely. The most unfortunate phase of the wheat speculation is not that it may ruin a few operators for short account, or that it may draw money from this centre, butthat the unreasonable advance in the price absolutely checks exports and tends to drive foreign purchasers to other markets.

As to the Bank of England rate of discount, opinions differ as to whether it will be advanced or not. Speculatively the advance in the rate was practically discounted by English operators in stocks on the occasion of the last fortnightly settlement, which occurred last

While the bulk of the selling to-day appeared to be of a professional character, the buying was rather better than yesterday. Foreign houses bought quite freely, both because our market ruled lower than the London market, and also because their clients had realized freely with the view of taking advantage of just such a reaction as occurred to-day. There was really no pressure to sell stocks to-day, and the extreme declines were the result of successive raids. The movement of prices was far from uniform. and quite as many stocks closed a shade higher or practically unchanged as scored declines. The last were measured by unimportant fractions. Of the active list the stocks portant fractions. Of the active list the stocks that were superior to the efforts to depress prices were New England, Union Pacific, and Lackawanna. Among the specialties, decided advances may be noted in Oregon Improvement common and in Hocking Valley and Tojede. Although the tendency of the market while it was in progress appeared to be toward lower prices, and the average at the close was below that of yesterday, the tone cannot be described as otherwise than strong, so persistent was the resistance that it showed. The chances are that there has been a further increase in the short interest and a further transfer of stocks from light-waisted speculators to stronger hands. The closing was firm. By the Investment of One Bollar. There is nothing that I now enjoy that I do not owe t he happy chance of having used Dr. David Kennedy's Pavorite Remedy at a time when I was suffering all that a human being could endure. My troubles began in my Kidneys over nine years are, and from which I never expected to recover. Later my physicians said I had Bright's Disease.

To add to my affliction, after I had been ill about two years I bed as had attack of Gravel. Six years ago last June—how well I remember the day—I six Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout N. Y. advertised in our paper. After using three bottles I was well. I have never insid a return of the Gravel, and, though I am over sixty years of age, I am vigorous and strong as I was in my prime.

I do all my own work and rarely know what it is to be tired. I keep the medicine in the house and give it to my grandchildren, and recommend it whenever I can what physicians and all of the many remedies I had taken could not do Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy did: it stayed the disease and made me a strong vigorous woman.

A CLAIM TO HUMAN GRATITUDE

Charlette Corday, the sad-faced, tender-hearted, peas-

Charlette Corday, the sad-faced, tender-hearted, peasant girl of Normandy, made great history by one desperate act!

Sickensed by the saturnalia of the Frencherevolution and moved to desperation as Robespierre and Marat were leading the flower of France to the guillotine, she determined that she would put an end to Marat's bloody reign.

Marat had demanded two hundred thousand victims for the guillotine?

He proposed to kill off the enemies of the revolution to make it perpetual!

He proposed to kill off the saturiotic peasant mad?

Guining access to his closely guarded quarters by a subterfuge, she found him in his bath, even then inexorable and giving written directions for further slaughter?

He asked her the names of the inimical Deputies who had taken refuge in Caen. She told him, and he wrote them down. "Inst well! Before a week is over they shall all be brought to the guillotine."

At these words, Charlotts drew from her bosom the knifts, and plunged it with supernatural force up to the hill in the heart of Sarat. Fend. come to me," cried Marticle, and plunged it with supernatural force up to the hill in the heart of Sarat.

Come to me up the hillow?

In the Corcoral tailery at Washington is a famous painting of Charlotta, represented as belind the prison bars the day be ore her execution.

It is a thrilling, sad picture, full of sorrow for her suffering country, and of unconquerable hate for her country a ensembra.

What a lesson in this trogic story! Two hundred, way, five hundred thousand people would Marat have eacrificed to his unnot plassion of power?

Methods are quite as murderous and inexprable as men, and they number their victims by the millions.

The page of history is full of murders by authority and by bundling!

But the age is betterine, Men and methods are improved. A few years age is was worth once professional life to advise or permit the use of a proprietary medicine. Today there are not two physicians it, any town in this country who do not regularly preparied of the Log Cabin days, a
